

Several incredibly large machines positioned throughout our solar system exist to control mankind. These machines, working in concert, form and conceal a system governing our thoughts; behaviors; emotions; intuitions and what many conceive of as their "spiritual" existence. To begin, researchers often report that the term "black sun" has something to do with what is worshipped by certain members of an elite occult which secretly governs the world. Central to this mechanistic system is a dimension electromagnetically 'built' –formed as a space that is separate from the physical world we experience. This dimension is structured by "pulling" several wave-particles emanated by the sun and using them as the fundamental building block of a separate reality. When seen from inside this mechanically produced 'extra dimension,' the sun appears black for the most part and only shining in disparate shifting orange and brown shaded regions. This separate dimension is created by a large spherical manned structure pictured below.

I crudely elaborated my remotely viewed findings using colored pencil- no concern is given to artistic integrity in communicating this topic. Main picture is of "station," fig. 1 depicts station's "position," and fig. 2 depicts "Black Sun" –the after-effect of this station's activity. Knowing little more than a basic understanding of theoretical physics, I can only speculate that this object is positioned somewhere between Mercury and Venus. A property called "entanglement," in which quanta within atoms of one perceived region of space are entangled and interact in meaningful ways within atoms of another region would seem to be at play here. This extra dimension pulls apart whatever of the sun it needs to form and is then projected into broken up regions used to conceal other machines that are used by this system. Because the basic obvious action of this system is allocating and repurposing what most would consider "light" I call these machinations and everything done by their disparate parts The Luciferian Machine.

Before disclosing other major parts of this system I wish to deal with the elite cabal concept. It is commonly held that most new initiates are unaware of what lies at the root of the system they have joined. I believe even several levels of so-called "higher ups" believe that the ceremonies they have attended and participated in serve as actual interfaces with a true higher being- be it negatively or positively oriented; that their participation is necessary to appease said deity; that the ceremonies involved are necessary for the benefit of their group and are done in some instances to benefit mankind. In other words, members may advance through several levels without ever knowing that what they are introduced to as a god or devil; what "realms" they visit and insights they gain; are all sourced from a very advanced technology.

Drives to action, and attendant feelings/thoughts of any sentient being each contain distinct resonant signatures. A frequency which carries, for example, the content of a person's anger- even their anger alone can be seen as a further 'refined' or isolated frequency. One system literally records these frequencies -the joys, despairs, deeds and impotencies of mankind- and stores them. The entirety of what any given individual thinks and feels along with their inner impressions of themselves and their relation to the world can be recorded and is technologically preserved as collected energetic frequencies even after a person dies. The collecting machines of this system are pictured below.

A second purpose these machines serve is dispersion of conscious and subconscious thoughts/feelings, inundating a person's neural networks. It is no exaggeration to say that each person begins as a loosely assembled unit of conscious matter learning what it is to be alive from its environment and before too long is bombarded by the thoughts/feelings and experiences of another person that came before us.

Pictured above is what this system uses to complete this process. Each spherical object exists in a precise amount of this other dimension that allows them to remain separate from our reality and yet perform their programmed tasks. The 'orbs' are varied in size and transmit their contents from one to another and deliver what they've gathered to and from a central coordinating system.

Prefacing the central coordinating system, the topic of white "spiritual" light must be addressed. Some allotment of what is experienced as a soft and intensely calming white light is often found by spiritually adept people at some point in their preliminary progress. This field of light is produced as fields taken from the star by the first station described. It is used as a fundamental current of energy running through nearly every part of the Luciferian machine.

Resonant frequencies of any negative feeling, thought and action that the system of flying orbs appropriates by taking them from the conscious fields of any people living or upon their deaths, are transmitted into a large cube. Within the cube there is a central field of white light; looking much like a small contained star. The negative conscious content gathers along the edges of the interior of the cube. Fig.1 is a thumbnail depiction of the outer appearance of this system. The "T" shaped device is made of the same material and functions in an as of yet undetermined capacity. Its interior does contain fields of the same energies without the golden crescent in the cube and it does interact with the orb system. Fig.2 is an example scenario of a negative conscious intent residing within a person's body, being recorded and/or taken by the spherical system.

A golden crescent shaped device is positioned so that one tip of the crescent is directly above the white energy field and the other directly below. The crescent gathers amounts of disembodied negative conscious content and projects it into the white energy field. This system employs a type of teleportation; the same white light forms the field underlying a targeted individual and the transmission of negative conscious experience -in resonant frequency form- is delivered to the field underlying the targeted person. This white light which serves as the channel for transmission is differentiated from the particular type of 'light' and electrical current that our physical bodies utilize within our brains, nervous systems, and our cells' mitochondrial and ribosomal bodies. Differentiated from this physically utilized energy to such a particular degree that mankind serves as 'receiver' of such conscious content; it is the thought-feeling-trigger to action of another living or deceased person. Common conscious contents that this system transmits are addictions; anger; murderous or larcenous intent etc.

An important aside: The Luciferian Machine is designed to affectively contain up to 9 billion people. This does not mean that every individual up to 9 billion need be directly interfered with/steered by one or more parts of the machine.

A brief synopsis of time as known to mankind: Resonant frequency within DNA molecules and cerebral-neural cortices including nervous systems all entangle what are to be known as aspects of the field of space each person will experience in their future. Thought-emotion-sensation felt by one person is held in such a way within the interior landscape of their psyche and physical body that it raises to the surface. In turn, it may be turned back upon itself to surface again. This process defines joy; despair; worry; any thought. Once such a given state is sufficiently turned upon itself, an emanation is created that leaves an impression in the surrounding field. These two processes are primary to natural existence on earth. They do not happen within a space where we are physically removed from others. As such, one's path as dictated by their own inner workings (process one,) often becomes changed for the better or worse by what is 'emanated' by others (process two.) It suffices to say that this alone serves to maintain most people inside confines far removed from their natural potentials.

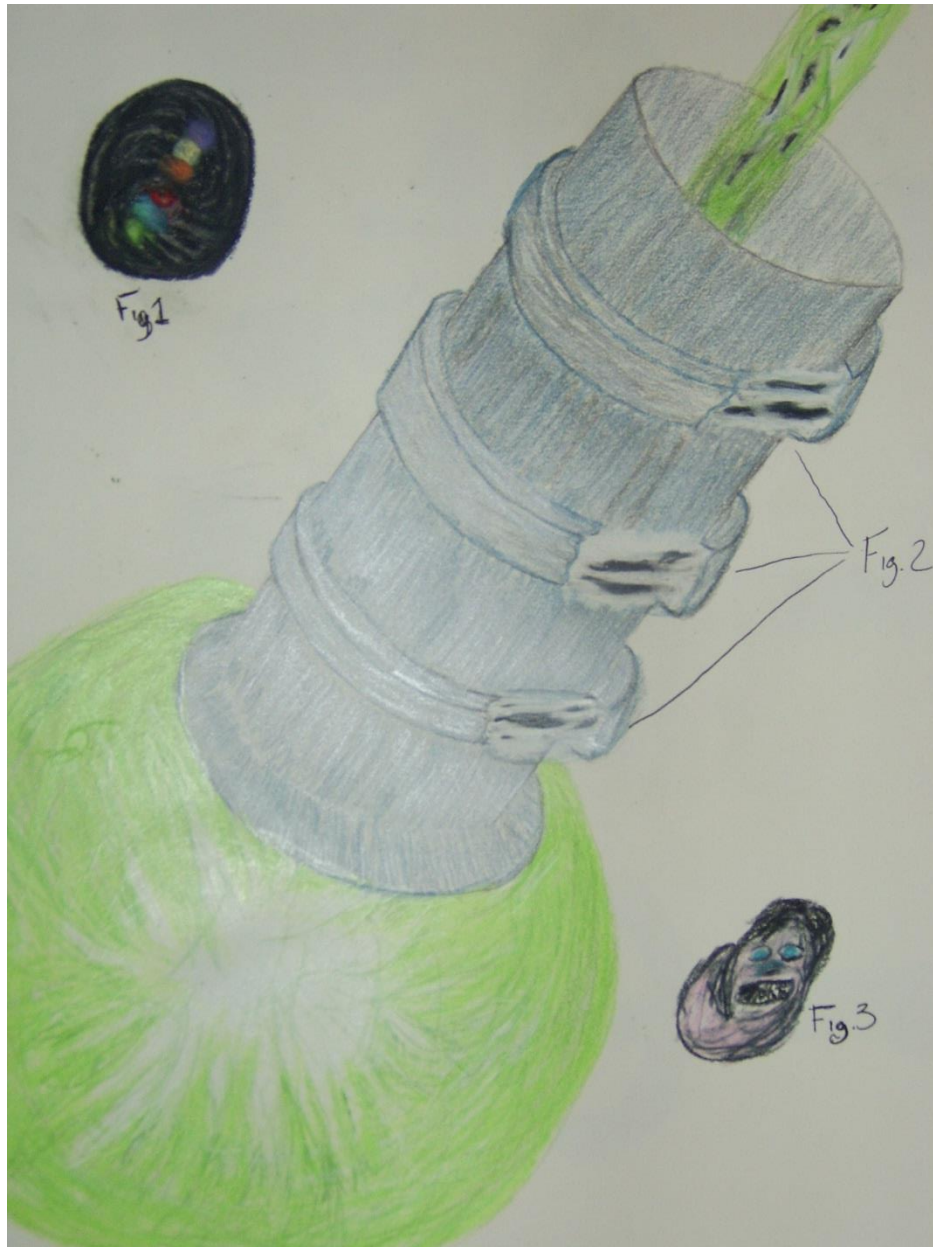

Only a sufficient ratio of people relative to the whole population need manipulated by the Luciferian Machine and only to the extent that they serve to "derail" and redirect the trajectories of those around them. In this way, mankind as a whole (up to 9 billion on this planet) is contained and except for extremely few and far removed instances, no one reaches true liberation and realizes their capacity.

Naturally, the field of soft white light and fields of light in various colors are considered positive interactive parts of man's spiritual progress. Man's natural state is not negative. Man's natural awareness is such that many of us pursue one means or another to strengthen our own beings and reach our genuine potential. Whatever man's genuine potential is, it poses a great risk to the controllers of this system and the world populace. The black pyramid with floating capstone depicted on the back of the one dollar bill is an actual technological system that plays a vital role in containing decent, good people and disallowing them to realize their innate abilities on behalf the Luciferian Machine. For illustrative purposes, the pyramid is broken into its three main levels. A layer of the aforementioned white light flattens into a field between each level. Before continuing, note here the colors of the energy in each system. "The white light of the one becomes the yellow light of individual and collective intellect; the blue light of individual and collective love; and the red light of individual and collective will and intent." -I paraphrased that from no source in particular; the language and concept is ubiquitous regarding this belief.

The bottom level of the pyramid projects a holographic realm that is meant to be inwardly experienced by people that have "advanced" enough to gain access to its projected realms. Fig.1 Depicts the outer view of this pyramid (it is more equilateral than depicted there.) Also an amount of an "Astral Plane" is shown as being projected out of the pyramid's bottom layer which consists of a fairly empty chamber filled with a red energy field. At the level of what directly exerts control; the blue level is comprised of a network of channels between separate by walls that opens to a central column. A field of the white light runs in the central column, it is excited to a sort of contained lightning that is blue energy which runs through the channels between uneven angularly surfaced walls. This level is a simulated neural network. An 'adept' learns to interface their brain with the false neural network of the pyramid. (Fig.2) A person then creates a holographic double, projects enough of their being into this double, and learns to use it to explore their newly found abilities in their newly discovered Astral Plane. The top, 'capstone' area is the "Godhead" of this false realm. Not every Astral experience is positive, many are needlessly - distractingly- sexual, and some provide the practitioner with the sense of genuine spiritual attainment.

The Astral experience meant to be projected to which groups of individuals is determined by the energy which is directed into this capstone region. Inside walls and floors of this section contain large beveled lenses. It is filled with yellowish light and through the outer walls it receives transmissions of information and conscious experiential content. These transmissions are sent from moons of Saturn to this moon and then transmitted to the designated receiver pyramid.

The final system I will address here will be even less readily accepted than the notion that the Astral Plane is a holographic projection and all colored light spirituality in all its forms are pathways to the activities of the Luciferian Machine.

A gigantic field of white light frequency-set to resonate a certain color of its spectrum (green depicted here though one exists for each of several different colors) is formed at the base of a large hollow column. Along the column's wall, rings (Fig.2) of white light with several units of negative conscious intent coursing through them, add their content into what this "tower" projects. Fig.1 is a fairly large sphere that appears to be covered by rough tar. Along the outside of the sphere there are several round lights of different colors, a light for each Chakra. An adept learns to “progress” to a state where each of their chakras are actualized and “open.” Chakra philosophy states that each chakra facilitates the delivery of sacred energy to pertinent organs and glands inside the body. This amounts to sub-molecular frequency setting, and is done in such a way that, for example, within the ovaries or testes a sexual kinship or attraction is triggered toward another; a feeling of security, threat and/or excitement is triggered within the adrenals. Chakras are a system of emotional and sensory controls. Negative contents are transmitted through this system as well. A strange part of this is several small apparently physiological entities (Fig.3) that are physical embodiments of pure mal-intent that are genetically created to exist within the energy field of one’s chakras.
